Theory of Change Access to Justice Programme

Children and youth access justice and their rights are upheld

Implementation of non-custodial measures

Increased dignity in detention

Improved prevention & reintegration

Synergies in context of legal pluralism

Coordination of state and traditonal actors

Diversion from criminal proceedings

Alternatves to pre-trial detention & emprisonment

Access to specialized services to reduce recidivism

Recognition of traditonal justice systems

Improved child-friendly facilites

Decisions in line with local, regional & international standards

Reduction of violence against children

Coordinaton between protection and justice systems

Community based prevention & reintegration

Assumptions

Access to effective legal systems enhances social cohesion & peace

Girls & boys best interests require specialized justice systems

Tdh promotes the principles of restorative justice

Traditional justice plays an important role

Children & youth should express their views

How we will make change happen

Adapting legal & procedural frameworks

Embedding capacity building into professional structures

Advocacy at international, regional & national levels

Evidence-base and action-oriented research

Pilot
Intervention in migration, confict and transitional justice contexts

Pilot
Harnessing digital technology to initiate and amplify